close of the desclating war in America comes to us apparanely, new of European Convention for miligating some of the horrors of fature conflicts. This Convention, as our readers will remember, was the result of a conference between the Ploniposentiaries of most of the European Powers, including Great Britain, held at Geneva lest August, and it is still kept open for the signature of those which were not represented. The phis is to ameliorate the condition of the wounded it armies in the field. Hitherte, it is well known these unfortunate men enjoyed no immunity from the treatment to which their comrades still in the ranks were exposed. If it was counted an oct harbarity actually to slay them when no longer capable of resistance, it was at least not ancommon to leave them to perial on the field by a slow. er and more cruel death, because the fighting was so far over that a truco was agreed on for bury-ing the dead and removing the wounded, the parties who might attempt to remove them were line ble to be fired on. Their medical attendants also were exposed to aqual risks, and if they were captured when in the office of ministering to their charge they became prisoners of war as if actually combatants. Yet this remaining savageness survived rather from want of agreement and arrangement than from intention. The principle of sparing the wounded was recognised in sieges by the rule that the hospitals, if distinguished by a vollow flag, should not be fired at. And therefore we are under great obligations to those who conceived and have now carried out the idea of extend ing this privilege from the city to the camp, and of adding to it such general provisions as may make it more beneficial and complete. With this view the convention declares that not only the military hospitals in the field hut the ambulances in which the wounded are collected and conveyod shall be declared to be hence, and as such respected and protected by the belligerents as long ing sea montage. as any wounded are therein; and that all persons omployed with such bospitals or ambulances, anch na surgeons, nurses, bearcis, and chaplains, shall he equally regarded as neutrals. We should gather from this provision, if it is not narrowed in practice, that the ambalances, those beneficent contrivances for the tollecting and removing the wounded to hospital, first introduced, to the honour of the First Nopoleon, by Baron Larrey, his celebrated surgeon, may now without fear be emil tan. played on both sides as soon as a full in the con- 1 1518 Hongkong, 27th May, 1885. flict permits them to advance on the field, without the necessary of a formal preliminary agreement. It is sian established that all persons so engaged in the field or in hospitals may continue freely fo perform their functions even after the position is occupied by the enemy, and may rejoin at pleasure their nwn corps. All persons thus engaged are to he distinguished by an arm badge, bearing a red ero son a white ground, and the simbulances and hes itals are to carry a flog with the same J. Burd & Co., between the premises of Messics device. There is to be no distinction between the sick and wounded of either party, they may, when procheable, he delivered up on their side at once to their own corps. When this cannot be done, those who, after discharge from hospital are imfit for service are to be sent back to their own country. Those who are fit for service may be sent back under a pledge het te serve again.
While these provisions are established between the helligerents, care has been taken to collect the services of the inhabitants of the country in the same distoral nuceas If they bring halp to the wounded they shall be respected, and remain free Any wounded man entertained in a house shall be a protection to it; and any inhabitant who has infertained wounded men shall be held free from liability to have troops billeted in his house, and from contributions imposed on the territory. These regulations are to be brought to the know-
